AS YOU stroll or drive along past the Chichester Festival Theatre you may have noticed a new structure being built alongside the grand old building.

The make-up of planning and the media to build – but the work has now its opening night as the "Theatre on the Fly".

As Chichester Festival Theatre (CFT) celebrates 50 years of internationally renowned work, Festival now looks to the future by forcing Theatre on the Fly, a temporary new space for the next generation of theatre-makers and theatre-goers.

With the support of the Heritage Foundation they have created three young theatres... Continued on page 3

EVERY WEDDING SHOULD HAVE ONE

Last Saturday, a Chichester band was asked to play at a wedding near Aunley. The organisers knew what they were doing: they hired posh portable loos and...wait for it...a first aid tent. These are people who know a good wedding, like happiness, fine food, and sparkling wine (Brent)

TARGETS

The glen Clympis range hanging from Tower Bridge behind me is a cartoon. Two deer in the woods: one is showing the other a red target on his chest. The other is saying "Bummer as he looks like a target!" I mention this scene in the book that people of make no mention of Jerry

HOUSE OF LONGS

Looks like it's going to become an elected chamber. With "Lords" getting a seat for 10 years. They should by the Chinese system: when they appoint people who know stuff about whatever is being debated. If they are planning a debate about trade with Europe, they appoint some Chinese business people who have lived and worked in Europe

Measly. But the grass still needs the same cutting down it?

TREES

For the sake of argument: I have trees. Who does their PTV in summer they block out the sun. In Autumn they dump millions of bits of strong stuff everywhere. I have the usual: a few trees in the park. I made the council a failure to plant them: "surgery" on them and cost the leaves. The rest of the year they hurt every garden and avenue with their twisted fingers. It's not as if we need them now for caravans or paths. Children can't climb them anymore, or play on them. Down with trees

MESSIAH JAZZ

I am shocked by my selfish view that messiah is the best shop in Chichester. I once went in and bought a red, A single unit. It wasn't. I bought today's job to them, although you get better value there than here. A man goes into a hardware shop "I'd like some nail". The assistant asks, "exactly how long?" The man replies "For... I was hoping to keep them"

Attempted break-ins in Merston

COINCIDENTS of broken in Merston, Chichester reported being woken up by noise sometime between 11pm and 1.45am on Sunday 18 June.

When police arrived at the scene at Merth Lane it was apparent that someone had attempted to gain entry via the windows to access property whilst the owners were asleep.

Detective Constable Della Hughes from Chichester CID said: "Fortunately none of the properties were broken into but nonetheless this was a frightening experience for the occupants to be woken up by an experience in the middle of the night.

"I would appeal to anyone who witnessed or heard any suspicious activity to please call our quoting serials group of 01243 416666, or the independent charity CrimeStoppers anonymously on 0800 555 555.

"Please do not hesitate to dial my number if you hear or see any suspicious activity in your area and always make sure your windows and doors are secure before you go to bed."

Chichester MP praises emergency services and offers help to flood victims

AS PART of West Sussex continues to deal with the aftermath of the recent flooding, Andrew Tyrie, MP for Chichester, is offering help and support to any households making insurance claims to ensure they are handled as swiftly and efficiently as possible.

The Chichester MP has encouraged the emergency services for 48-hour hot work over the last two weeks.

Andrew Tyrie MP, said: "The emergency services, local authorities and the Environment Agency have been working hard to reduce the limited floodwater and help affected communities with the recovery. I think they have done a remarkable job.

"The most important item for flood victims will now be their insurance claim. It is essential that insurance companies deal with claims as quickly as possible. Any households who are having problems should get in touch with me. I will do what I can to help.

"People in areas at flood risk should follow the advice given by the Environment Agency. They can sign up to the Environment Agency free flood warning system by calling 0800 561 080."

Any households in need of Andrew's assistance should contact his office at the House of Commons on every day 10pm.

Op Peapod leads to Bognor burglar conviction

A 30-YEAR-OLD man from Bognor has been sentenced at Chichester Crown Court to a suspended imprisonment for several burglaries committed across Sussex and Hampshire in the last eight months.

Unlike Kneppdale of Havant Road, Bognor who pleaded guilty to two counts of burglary and one count of attempted burglary was arrested at his home address last in March 2012.

Detective Constable Jon Vailley told the jury the operation called Op Peapod with Hampshire Police said: "Kneppdale's victim was like an Aladdin's cave of stolen property including dozens of items from reported burglaries in Sussex and Hampshire. The job then began of trying to trace where all the recovered electrical goods, jewellery and other items had come from.

"It was decided to use the Sussex Police network to publish the photos of the property on line and then letters were sent to 42 burglary victims from Sussex, Hampshire and the surrounding in Hampshire asking them to look at the warrants and fill in a form if they recognised their stolen property.

"He had stolen picture frames and managed to connect a series of stolen property back to the daylight camera. However, there is still a good deal of unrecovered property that can be traced at <http://www.hampshire.police.co.uk/gallery.asp>.

Kneppdale was sentenced to a burglary in Havant Road, Bognor Regis on 10 February, one in Mayfield Road, Havant, Hampshire on 11 March and an attempted burglary in Hurlingham Road, Southampton on 15 February.

Det Vailley continued: "The judge Kneppdale used the time to travel across Hampshire and West Sussex and our officers are on-going with regards to further burglaries. If you have any information that could help police with the investigation please call our quoting Operation Peapod or the independent charity CrimeStoppers anonymously on 0800 555 555."

Stone-Safe

We would like to inform all our clients that we have been and will continue to install memorials to the highest standard. That's why two years ago we set up a company Stone - safe systems Ltd.

Improving the image of Lawn Memorial Installation

Modern Memorials are supposed to have a stainless steel pin to keep them upright this offers very little assistance in poor soil conditions. The flat slab, laid on the ground with the stainless pin or anchor into an unknown condition, unless it could contain an unexpected void. We have designed and developed our own system which has proven a safer alternative.

- 1/ Stone-Safe as its depth, memorial found stone base giving greater stability than a flat slab on the ground. (It can also being mortared)
- 2/ A mechanical fitting between the headstone and the base, and rubber. The use of having a mechanical fitting has two advantages. The joints are immediately and permanently at maximum strength and locked fitting allows for the easy removal of the headstone at a later date if additional fitting is required.
- 3/ The ground anchors extend up in all soil conditions. This means concrete piles with inserted 32 mm stainless steel rods allowing installation base to be drilled down into the concrete piles, which provides for greater stability for the memorial and less chance of subsidence giving you peace of mind, not plagued with problems in the future.

B&Q teams up with Chichester Festival Theatre and award winning architects

B&Q is teaming up with Chichester Festival Theatre and Assemble, an award winning London based team of group of architects to help create the next generation of theatre audiences.

A new temporary space, Theatre on the Fly, has been built to showcase an exciting season of work at Chichester Festival Theatre as it celebrates its 50th anniversary.

Designed and built by Assemble, many of the materials for the theatre have been donated by local retailer B&Q. B&Q employees from the local store have given a helping hand with their DIY skills to help create the temporary theatre that will be open throughout the summer period.

Previous projects by Assemble include The Greenhouse, which transformed a deserted petrol station in Chichester into a local hub, cinema, and Poppy for a Flyover which turned a dangerous gap between East and Westbound traffic on the A27 into a sustainable art venue.

Mark Seaton, Corporate Social Responsibility Director at given a helping hand explained: "Working to improve our local communities is at the very heart of B&Q. We're proud to be able to sponsor such a worthwhile cause that will not only benefit new talent, but provide employment for those that exist and use the shops. Our team of local store Customer Advisors have been hard at work today with their expert DIY knowledge to help create the temporary theatre to host for the first show."

Cold callers prey on vulnerable residents

WARNINGS are being issued to prevent residents affected by the winter flooding in West Sussex to stay on their guard against the advances of rogue traders.

It comes after reports of unlicensed traders appearing on the doorstep of households in the area, offering to carry out repair work in proportion to the immediate aftermath of the bad weather and local flooding.

Residents being approached in this manner, when they are in such a vulnerable position, are advised by Trading Standards officers to say 'no' to these cold callers.

If work needs to be carried out on your property, always use a reputable business to do it for you.

West Sussex Trading Standards' Approved Business Directory contains a list of hundreds of businesses, thoroughly vetted by Trading Standards officers, who have signed up to the 'Buy With Confidence' scheme.

There are a number of builders, decorators, electricians and home improvement businesses signed up to the scheme in the local area.

Covered by Council Cabinet Member for Public Protection, Christine Field, said: "Discover an on agency of this nature on the door, it is vital to bring such rogue traders out of the woodwork, wherever in the vulnerable.

"If you do need emergency work done to your property, ignore the claims of rogue callers if they turn up at your door."

"Use a Buy With Confidence accredited business that has been checked by our Trading Standards officers."

Copies of the 'West Sussex Trading Standards Approved Business Directory' can be picked up from stockists around the county. For more information or to view an online version, visit our website at www.westsussex.gov.uk/buy-with-confidence.

For and advice to report misleading at your area, call the Citizens Advice Consumer Helpline on 0800 049 9999.

West Sussex County Council has also placed signs in the worst affected areas and related its policy regarding shop closures while the clean up operation is completed.

Moonlight Walk is a magical evening

ARMED with torches, music and plenty of enthusiasm, more than 150 night owls of all ages took to the streets around Chichester for St Wilfred's Hospice's Moonlight Walk on Friday, June 15.

It was a fantastic success, projected to raise more than £10,000 and despite predictions of heavy rain, the showers beautifully stayed away.

St Wilfred's Hospice fundraiser Jill Denny said: "It was a lovely walk with the music, a few torches and great atmosphere and we had walked out as storm clouds came, but luckily we didn't have to bring that rain with us."

Walkers included teams as well as individuals and while registering was overseen by the Luthamington Academy Street Band.

Many moving messages were placed on large letters spelling out the word messages around at the back of the main hall. Afterwards they were taken back to St Wilfred's and placed in the chapel.

As Fines provided free parking, and in keeping with the night theme, some local charity owls, a brought some of their rescue owls which participants could be photographed with.

Before setting off from Fines Leisure Centre, walkers enjoyed a warm up session courtesy of Michelle Kyte, Glen McCreesh, Natalie Davis and Louise Gill, while St John's FM's Ian Crooks helped build the mood.

Along the way walkers were able to stop at Swanfield Chapel and light a votive candle in memory of loved ones. Eborah Palace Gardens were adorned with lights and balloons and walkers arrived to the sounds of the town choir.

Jill said: "The atmosphere of the walk was lovely and very positive. People were happy to go and there was a real sense of achievement when they came back. After ten miles they were still coming back happy. It was a wonderful event and we hope people will give generously to our walkers."

Afterwards walkers enjoyed a light breakfast with many thanking all stages of a relaxing message provided by the hospice's team of complementary therapists.

The event was a huge community effort, with around 30 volunteers helping as route marshals. Natalie May Foods, Vintagem and Aqua Pure donated snacks and water while staff at Fines Leisure Centre donated their venue and time.

A BIG month is upon us

GET READY to celebrate a month of history, culture, and sport as the Chichester District Big Month.

- There are lots of exciting events taking place throughout July as part of Chichester District's Big Month including:
- the opening of Chichester District Council's new museum The Norman,
- Historic May Foods Tradition and Junior Aquathlon,
- the Olympic torch relay travelling through the district,
- a free open day at Hartsgate Leisure Clubhouse,
- Love Parks Week end,
- Chichester District Council's summer of sport.

City Mayor Cllr. Colin Meador for Economy, Property and Tourism at Chichester District Council, says: "This year we are celebrating some key historic events. This includes the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, the Olympics, and as a more local item, the completion of The Norman museum, which is one of the biggest projects the council has ever delivered."

The Big Month starts with the opening of The Norman on Sunday 8 July. Located on Tower Street in the centre of Chichester, The Norman will tell the story of the Chichester District over the past 900 years. One of the special features of the museum is that it has been purpose built to show the remains of the Roman bath of the city of Hannonia Regens - or Chichester as we now know it. The museum is just one of the many new features you will see.

The remains of the bath were found in the 1970s and lay preserved under a car park until themselves could be built. The museum is now a success for visitors to see for the first time and see the main features: the ground floor.

Also, look out for the mosaic on the Jupiter Stone, and the Chichester Museum. First, take the breath-taking view of the cathedral on the second floor, where you can 'touch the wall' with chemistry and cathedral stone placed over the window. You can also search for something fishy, try on a Roman outfit, and even make your own mosaic.

Then, on Saturday 14 and Sunday 15 July, join the speakers and women and find out how to be. Join the chance to take part in the Historic May Foods Tradition and Junior Aquathlon. The main Tradition event on the Sunday includes a noon walk from St Hartsgate Leisure Clubhouse, a gym (on only) cycle ride and a walk (on only) run. If you don't feel like tackling those distances on your own, you can do them as part of a team. Also, join the main Tradition event, there will be the Historic May Foods Chichester Try To event. This is a special tradition suitable for competitors who prefer a shorter distance tradition involving a 400m pool swim, golf hole and a 10m run.

The Junior Aquathlon is for competitors between eight and 11. It will include a swimming race at Hartsgate Leisure Clubhouse, followed by a run around Chichester College's campus. The distances set for junior competitors will be dependent upon their age.

On Monday 19 July the Olympic Torch will travel through Rogate, Midhurst, Eastbourne, Tillingham, Petworth, Brighton and Chichester. A map with start times for each location and top tips for the day can be found on the council's website at www.chichester.gov.uk. London 2012. Please note that you will only be able to see the torch and the torchbearers in the areas announced on the website. The end of the torch will be travelling at 4 miles to the next community.

Love Parks Week will be held from Sunday 18 - Sunday 20 July. To celebrate, a plant sale and picnic will be held in Bishop's Palace Gardens, Chichester, on Wednesday 20 July. To find out more, contact Chichester District Council's Parks Team on 01243 534160 or parkinfo@chichester.gov.uk.

Hartsgate Leisure Clubhouse is holding a free open day from 10am-3pm on Sunday 22 July to celebrate their 10th anniversary. You can take part in free swimming, badminton, squash, table tennis, bouyancy, and play, table games, and more. To find out more, you can contact the centre by calling 01243 534160.

And finally, from 14 July onwards, the council has an exciting month of sport programmes. These include:

- Early on the Community courses from 14 July
- Football on the Community courses from 14 July
- Sport and PlayPop Open from 14 July and
- Lots of activities run by Hartsgate Leisure, including trampolining, table tennis, fencing, gymnastics and swimming.

There is also a range of other events and activities on the council's website, including the Chichester Festival and the celebration of the Norman Museum. This is also a busy year for Chichester Festival Theatre, as they are celebrating their 50th anniversary.

Side-hurting, hardcore giggling

Mia Edwards

THESE things come out, my school friends and I usually go to it in a certain circle and end up at the atmosphere that is hard to miss. Usually that is the best time ever. It's a gig which we can sit with our usual support set (and) spend a laughing and when they laugh, I mean going home in the way you style laughing. This is hardcore giggling that is required by you that are completely mad and unhappy and kind of really. It's the kind of laughter that you overtake on stage or home from a bunch of annoying girls and think to yourself, Oh dear god, they should have this less so that their parents don't tell our son, only their own. Nobody finds that we're funny.

Except for us, of course. You know that when someone is giggling? It's usually the people who aren't in a joking ability to be honest in everything. Some of our comments are 'buddy jokes', 'educational' everyone ended up to want to punch our faces. It's not a situation and maybe in our families. It's not a friendly definition of annoying.

who's the who that we're laughing when everybody else finds we're absolutely hilarious and fun.

But, when someone, someone just two of us are on something together. It's an absolutely amazing when it's somebody else. The general attitude is 'It's something you'd have share with us, or are you being difficult only joking?' When it's you, though, everything is hilarious. Everyone else around you getting annoyed just adds to the amusement. My friend and I have a particular saying, 'Everybody hates us' but we happily accept when we're being teased around and the more you share with everybody around at you. That place is shared with giggles and a mix of understanding, 'We know that the the And We're In'.

But then again, when it's someone else? As a comedian as we are, at least we're having fun and making the most of our time. It's really hard to have a laugh when you're, otherwise everything becomes serious and depressing. When it's someone else group of saying we can't have our laughter mixed now can we?

New railway line for society

CHICHESTER and District Society of Model Organisers were pleased to welcome Debbie Millett, the popular Chichester celebrity entertainer, to their site in Chichester Lane to formally open their new on-stage model railway layout, Chichester Junction, at a recent 'Shine on Sunday' open afternoon.

Debbie has taken part in the recent production of Christopher Fry's The Boy with a Cart, at the Parish Church and in Chichester's Museum Theatre, and took a starring role in Cuff and Tug's Last Christmas. She is also a long standing member of Chichester Puppets and Chichester Church Organ.

The new model railway line has three sections of track, with a remote control and a sound system.

Visitors brought in and ran their own locomotives for testing and discussion. Knowledgeable staff were on hand to answer questions.

Three Puppets and several different miniature trains and Chichester Junction was also enjoyed by Debbie and our members, in Gloucestershire and Sussex.

During 2012, the final two 'Shine on Sunday' open Sunday afternoons, of the summer season, will be on Sunday 24 July and at September, between 2.00 to 5.00 pm.

Admission is free to the site of the 'Shine on Sunday' open afternoon, and Chichester Junction. There is a 'Shine on Sunday' railway layout, at Chichester Lane, off Regent Road, in East Chichester, 'Yard Street' PC at 90. Train lines will be offered to visitors. Related several different miniature trains and David Locomotives, tickets for value will be in stock, for adults or children, and light refreshments will be available.

Win free tickets to the South Downs Wood Fair at Queen Elizabeth Country Park, near Petersfield, on July 21st and 22nd - "A great family day out!"

YOU COULD win one of ten pairs of tickets being given away by the Chichester District. All you need to do is email your name and address to woodlands@chichester.co.uk and put "Chichester Wood" as the subject line. The winners will be drawn and notified on July 21st. Winners' tickets can be collected from Queen Elizabeth Country Park Centre.

If you're not lucky enough to win, you can still save money by buying all nine tickets from the Country Park Centre, until July 21st. Find more details at www.woodlands.co.uk

See more about the picturesque Queen Elizabeth Country Park, near Petersfield. The South Downs Wood Fair will focus on all aspects of wood, its production and its uses. On show will be everything from large machinery to small scale craftsmanship but there will be lots of other attractions and plenty of excitement for all. It's a friendly Chichester tradition, open air displays and working heavy horses will be among the many wood-based displays. There will also be a wonderful range of other crafts and exhibits on show. The organiser of the Wood Fair, Paul Edgcock, said: "This may be a Wood Fair, but wood is by no means the only content. There's plenty to attract everyone." Craft makers, artists and designers in other categories are among features and the craft workshops is not to be missed. Try your hand at pottery or learn about forest-management. For more active visitors, there's a spectacular climbing wall. 'Have-a-go' archery, and darts are also for the children. Although all this, there will be lots more to make the day special. You'll find lovely food, entertainment and more as well. Look out for the many stalls and workshops and expect some surprise surprises. The really does sound like a great day out for the whole family.

The gate will be open from 10am on Saturday and Sunday and 12.00 July. Admission at the gate is Adults £5, Seniors £3, Children £1.50. Parking is free too!

Discounted advance tickets are available at Queen Elizabeth Country Park until July 21st.

Midhurst celebrates Independents' Day by encouraging people to support their local shops

MIDHURST businesses are doing the flag for local retailers and supporting themselves on the high street.

Residents and visitors across the country are encouraged to buy at least one item from their local, independent shop to celebrate Independent Day on Tuesday 4 July 2012.

The national campaign, organised by Bournemouth Retail and the National Skills Academy for Retail, champions the local retailers who make the UK's villages, towns and cities so special.

Special offers will run throughout the day in Midhurst, including discounts and free extras. A number of businesses are taking part, including cafes, bookshops, shoe shops, outdoor wear specialists, hairdressers, shops, florists, beauty centres, jewellers, opticians and more, under repairs. Local schools will also be helping by handing out leaflets and supporting visitors around the town.

Midhurst Business, Rural Towns Co-ordinator at Chichester District Council, says: "Over one million independent retailers make up 90% of all retail businesses in the UK, and so their importance to local economies as well as their contribution to a location's identity and character are unparalleled.

"Midhurst has a vast array of independent shops that help to make the town special and distinctive. Local businesses want to see Independent Day to highlight what the town has to offer and to encourage more people to shop locally and experience the excellent services on offer."

The businesses taking part are:

- Between the Lines - double points on 4 July for customers holding a Between the Lines loyalty card.

- Black Sheep - up to 50% off customers and 40% off all summer dresses.

- Collette White - locally made sandwiches on the day.

- Down to Earth - double reward card points on all clearance products on 4 July.

- Ethelwode - 50% off all products purchased on Independent Day.

- Greenwich Jewellers, 29 Troon, Tinsford.

- Curlew's Coffee House - half price drinks all day on 4 July.

- JS Almond & Son - 50% off Transit watches.

- Kerryfly - special day and money free event. As white T-shirts paper.

- Midhurst Engineering - 50% discount on labour.

- Pinkies.

- The Steel Flower Company - free party bag with every tin of paint.

- Sherrington - many items half price.

- Simon's Fish.

- Shopping Out.

- Stashley Trading - 50% off on 4 July.

- Trotter - 50% discount on all display stock on 4 July, subject to availability.

- The Upholsterer - 50% off all fabric and wallpaper orders placed on 4 July.

The Five Year Engagement (12A)

THREE out of five stars

Running Time: 124 mins
Director: Nicholas Stoller
Starring: Emily Blunt, Jason Segel, Chris Pratt, Alison Brie, Ike Barinholtz, Jacki Weaver, Brian Finkelstein, Missi Ponzio

Watchable comedy with superb comic performances and a satisfying twist at the end, but it's also a good twenty minutes too long and is occasionally let down by some lazy plotting.

What's it all about?
Directed by Nicholas Stoller (Forgetting Sarah Marshall), The Five Year Engagement stars Jason Segel as Tom, a San Francisco dad who proposes to his girlfriend Violet (Emily Blunt) after a year of being together. However, they're both nervous about the wedding, they agree to put it off when Violet is offered a great academic psychology position at the University of Michigan, meaning alongside Professor Francis Dahlke (Kippen Darr).

When the couple moves to Michigan, Tom struggles to find a job and ends up working on a dairy estate, while Violet's career goes from strength to strength. Over time, the various pressures cause a strain on their relationship, which isn't helped by a) Violet developing a crush on Violet and b) Violet's mother Grace (Alison Brie) oversteering and starting a family with Tom's creepy best friend, Kim (Chris Pratt) after they bump up at the engagement party.

The Good
Blunt is utterly adorable as Violet, combining a maturity, grit, purity and a hint of playful sexuality that makes a refreshing change from most of the well-meaning heroines who also have good chemistry with Segel, who is less usual likable, slightly played well. There's also strong comic support from the likes of Brie, Pratt and Missy Kallig (as one of Violet's colleagues), though the film is almost completely stolen by Alison Brie's Truly Campbell or Anne Kline, depending on which show you watch), who not only make a more perfect English accent but also make all the best lines and provides the film's biggest laugh (in the "has your film won" scene).

The Bad
Blunt sometimes a good use of physical and verbal comedy throughout, but it's far too say that some of the jokes don't work, such as a couple of the most night gags or the confusion of having time pass by owing to the fun of it put another graduate. Similarly, the film is at least twenty minutes too long, although it does at least pull off a suitable romantic climax.

The other problem is that some of the obstacles that keep the couple from marrying seem very over-the-top. Similarly, the plot is often frustratingly lazy, most notably a scene that jumps forward a lengthy period of time, when Tom has a greatly beard and seems to be having a nervous breakdown - the script requires the audience to accept that this just happened, whereas it would seem reasonable to assume that trained psychologist Violet would have noticed something was wrong and addressed the same before things got that far.

Worth seeing?
The Five Year Engagement is an entirely watchable comedy that is ultimately worth seeing (only for Alison Brie's outstanding support performance).

Call to ban cola ingredient linked to cancer

THE CHEMICAL, which gives cola-colored drinks their natural color, has been linked to stomach cancer according to laboratory tests.

The levels of the additive, known as 4-methylresorcinol (4-MR), have already been reduced in Coca-Cola and Pepsi in the United States, after the state of California stipulated any food or drink containing it must be labeled with a cancer warning.

The study, which was led by scientists at the University of California, San Francisco, found that 4-MR is linked to cancer in the rat.

Campaigns have now called on manufacturers to "inspect the health of consumers" and to reduce the levels of 4-MR in their products.

Coca-Cola strenuously denies there is any health risk from 4-MR, claiming no food safety warnings in Britain and Europe have issued it as a concern. The drink complies fully with European laws.

The chemical, which gives cola-colored drinks their natural color, has been linked to stomach cancer according to laboratory tests.

The levels of the additive, known as 4-methylresorcinol (4-MR), have already been reduced in Coca-Cola and Pepsi in the United States, after the state of California stipulated any food or drink containing it must be labeled with a cancer warning.

It needs change has yet been adopted in Britain or the rest of the world.

Campaigners have now called on manufacturers to "inspect the health of consumers" and to reduce the levels of 4-MR in their products.

Coca-Cola strenuously denies there is any health risk from 4-MR, claiming no food safety warnings in Britain and Europe have issued it as a concern. The drink complies fully with European laws.

According to research by American group Center for Science in the Public Interest, the amount of 4-MR found in British cans of Coca-Cola is approximately 34 times higher than that found in the US drinks.

Laboratory tests have shown that 4-MR can lead to increased tumors in animals, but no reports have been detected in humans.

Melanie Clark, campaign co-ordinator at the Children's Food Campaign, told the Daily Mail: "Coca-Cola seems to be breaking its UK consumers with children. The company should respect the health of all its customers around the world, by using natural coloring that is free of known cancer-causing chemicals."

"The UK Government must regulate to protect public health from companies that aggressively market sugar-laden drinks that lead to obesity, diabetes and tooth decay."

A spokesman for the British Soft Drink Association told the Daily Mail there was no need to ban natural coloring containing 4-MR and said: "The 4-MR levels found in food and drink products pose no health or safety risks."

"Outside the state of California, no regulatory agency in the world considers the exposure of the public to 4-MR as present in amounts as to cause."

Coca-Cola said it already planned to alter the use of the chemical coloring in Britain, but could not disclose a timetable for the change.

It said: "We intend to expand the use of the reduced 4-MR natural globally as this will allow us to streamline and simplify our supply chain, manufacturing, and distribution systems."

Hospitality and catering sector signs pledge to cut food and packaging waste

DOZENS of fast-food restaurants, pubs, hotels and contract caterers have today signed a voluntary agreement to cut food and packaging waste by 10 per cent – the equivalent of 100 million meals – by 2015.

The pledge, called the Hospitality and Food Service Agreement, will also see better hospitality and food waste management across by 10 per cent the amount of packaging and waste food that is being recycled and turned into green energy. Early signatories to the agreement include both large and small and medium-sized companies, and include names such as McDonald, Greggs, Green King, Adams Brewery and Caffè Nero.

The agreement is backed by the UK, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland Governments, which will encourage their own citizens to cut waste. Government waste body WRAP, which has coordinated the agreement, said that if just one per cent of the industry signed up to the commitment, the waste could be reduced by 10 million tonnes by the end of 2015. They will also bring about savings of around 500,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide emissions.

Pubs, restaurants, hotels and takeaways produce around 1.4 million tonnes of food waste a year, almost half of which is being thrown away, mostly to landfill, according to WRAP. Along with food, the hospitality industry is also throwing away more than 300,000 tonnes of glass, paper and card. It estimates the hospitality industry is losing 100 million a year by not taking on food waste properly.

"Reducing food waste brings significant social and environmental benefits, as already demonstrated through our work on household food waste and the 'Courtyard Commitment' and 100,000 Green, says WRAP, whose signatories were businesses to sign up to the agreement.

It is an organization that has signed up to the agreement and a steering group has been set up to oversee progress on delivery and to support the targets and share good practice.

WRAP said it will provide businesses with support to help them to meet the commitments through online tools, workshops, training groups and expert advice.

Largest McDonald's outlet set for Olympics

McDonald's has unveiled its largest outlet outside the Olympic stadium, and the fast-food joint between 1,000 square meters, which is up to serve 1,000 Big Macs in just four weeks could be a lot with both families and athletes.

The fast-food joint's UK home, All McDonald's, also claimed credit for winning the company's partnership with the London Olympics.

McDonald's first restaurant opened one of four in the Olympic Park. They include a 24-hour "secret" restaurant in the Athletes Village.

"We are in the Athletes Village at a likely to be the busiest of all of them and athletes know more than most people what they should and shouldn't be eating," The Star quoted McDonald's, as saying.

"They have helped ensure people have different views on people's perception of the 'old McDonald's' as we confident that we have the breadth of menu to meet athletes' needs," he added.

The Academy of Royal Medical College was one of the signatories to the London McDonald's role as Official Restaurant Partner of the event. General Sir McDonald's said he was at the perfect location to show how far it has progressed in the past decade.

The restaurant in the Olympic Park's "World Square" will offer wraps and burgers made from locally sourced British beef and fish.

Two hundred staff from across the UK will be working at any one time at the restaurant. They will serve 100,000 people a day from 10 till midnight to "support" fans.

Good Nutrition = Success in abundance!

I HAVE BEEN lucky enough to be doing loads of work in the corporate field lately and I have to say, I am loving the challenge! I think in the past the link between Nutrition and contributing health has been ignored by many corporate as a key ingredient needed for a successful and thriving business. By optimising the energy of an individual, you can improve the work force on all levels, therefore a better and higher quality of performance and achievement is obtained. This is not only in the business world, but within the personal life too. It has been proved in many studies that a happy personal life creates a better and more productive work force. It is now being recognised by many, and I think that fast growing trend of education and science training around the power of Nutrition will create enormous shifts all over the world have been looking for. By utilising this concept there is hope of managing the biggest killer that affects long-termed business executives globally that killer is STRESS!

According to a number of surveys, stress related illness is responsible for killing one million people every year. What a life all about? Really you are not working as hard during your life to die of a heart attack prematurely, or develop a serious disease that will be debilitating and stop you doing the things you love!

Nutrition plays a vital role in the success of every individual and it is being introduced more and more into the corporate world to greatly reduce stress related illness and improve the individual's lifestyle and overall performance. The power of good nutrition is often underestimated, and when the work force is educated properly around the massive benefits of good nutrition they can develop a clear understanding of the reasons why it is so important and the realisation of the direct impact it can have on the entire success of a company.

The body, as we all know, extremely complex, however you have the right tools and simple explanations it is possible to understand everything you have to do to perform your maximum capability on a daily basis. In an ideal world I can ensure we all want to feel healthy, energetic, motivated, focused, calm and in control of our lives. Nutrition can not only help all these things, but it also plays an important role in our levels of concentration, improved brain function and the creativity and openness for new and exciting ideas. This can be, and is, an achievable reality for many companies now and the happiness, morale and overall well-being of employees is essential when producing the best possible quality of work.

I started working in the Fitness about a year ago when I became involved with Steve Smith, the creator/founder of BCS, the Behavioural Change Specialists BCS are well known in the region for their successful training on major corporations around E.U. (Emotional Intelligence training). This concept is taking the business world by storm and the powerful combination of stress with emotional intelligence and engaging Nutrition is proving to be valuable and shows an individual's performance to grow proportionally. It also also utilises quite the overall success of business worldwide. This concept has also been taken into well known and respected business schools and is seen as one of the best and most motivating modules of the training. It gives a different perspective on what's important to become, motivate, maintain and improve success what you are involved with.

My reports ensure are all about improving energy and they are vibrant, informative, motivating and inspiring. I think we are making great progress and moving forward in the world of food business. Its great to be a part of something that is creating change and seeing people taking more care of their physical and emotional needs is inspiring. With peak health the world is a much happier place and when employees realise that, the work force becomes a very different place to be!

Take charge of your own health, and the health of your company/team's... because life is for living, not just surviving.

NHS Trust crisis 'a wake up call'

NHS trusts facing financial survival must be alerted before they get to breaking point, like one in London, the British Medical Association said.

Dr Hamish McEldrum, chairman of medical at the BMA, made his comments after 11 Health Secretary Andrew Lansley asked to turn around one trust losing £1 million a week.

South London Healthcare NHS Trust will be the first as the ministry to begin under the terms of a special administrator tasked with putting it as a viable footing.

As further 20 trusts are facing serious financial difficulties which could ultimately see them as the same situation.

There isn't any facility to discuss financial issues in the system, said Dr McEldrum. "The reality is a wake up call that our has to try to make in some policies which actually deal with about trusts that are in difficulty long before they get to the point where you have to bring in the measures effectively, or administration, and to sort out the problem."

South London Healthcare NHS Trust, which runs three hospitals, has been criticised over standards of care and has run up deficits of more than £100 million over the past three years.

Despite efforts to improve its financial performance, it is still thought to be on track to lose between £100 and £150 million a year for the next five years.

Its chief executive was informed on Monday night that the trust is likely to be put into the "unsustainable procedure regime" which was introduced by the last Labour government but never before used. Mr Lansley sent a letter to the trust top in the light of previous reports outlining a special administrator using the powers. The administrator will take over the board and recommend measures to the Health Secretary to turn the trust's finances on a sustainable basis.

The trust runs Queen Mary's in Sidcup, the Queen Elizabeth in Wandsworth and the Princess Royal in Harefield hospital in Brentford. It has released a statement warning patients that services would continue as normal.

More than half of British women's waists are 'too big', say experts

IN BRITAIN a healthy waist measure is 30cm (12 inches) but researchers have found the average woman measure is at 34.5cm (13.5 inches).

Healthful Health measured data from more than 30,000 women and found a staggering 55 per cent had a waist larger than the healthy one.

These women are amongst the likes of heart disease, type 2 diabetes, infertility and cancer and Dr Doreen Donawick, professional level of physicians and diabetologist at Hafford Health, said the problem is "worrying".

Yet being obese around the waist can contribute to important health issues, such as breast cancer and infertility, she explained.

And it would seem women in the north of England have the biggest problem on their hands with an average measurement of 35cm, compared to 34.5cm in London. Dr Donawick remarks: "While waist size may seem like a cosmetic issue, that isn't about women fitting into their dressy jeans. Rather, it's an important indicator of overall health and well-being, particularly when taken into account with other health measurements."

Researchers estimated 50.5 per cent of the women have a body mass index (BMI) higher than the healthy average.

Just one 10 per cent of these pulled were moderately or markedly obese.

Kylie hits out' at Madonna's fashion sense

KYLIE MINOGUE is one of the most famous to agree that the singer was a bit ahead to speak her mind when she appeared as a guest on Don't Forget the Ladies Palace.

When asked Minogue what her take was on Madonna's recent fashion show performance in London was, she responded by saying, "I've thought again the 'newest' of 'new' and 'old' and 'new'." "I know!"

Adding, "I don't think it's just people more perceived than I do, it's more about it. I've seen Madonna's cheerleader tour outfits, which I have seen quite a few of. Madonna is a cheerleader - what would she do next? Or Lady of the Ocean? The idea like she should not be a girl of her own."

However, Kylie was a little more reserved and simply said, "I don't know."

Meanwhile, Madonna was spotted filming on the set of her new music video "Turn Up the Radio" today in many ways that most would tell her she wouldn't dare to wear.

Thirty-year-old Madonna showed off her new figure in an all-black, sheer, sequined jumpsuit that she wore to her last stage performance.

Spice up your life

THE SPICE GIRLS were back together once more yesterday in London to celebrate the launch of the new season of Wipe Out.

All five of the girls were on hand to help promote the show at the Renaissance London Hotel. Jennifer Saunders and Judy Greer created the show which is based on their movie.

The photocall took place on a stage where it all began, as it was the video location for their first single "Wannabe."

Each of the ladies stuck to their own style for the shoot, and ultimately brought their own past and on-entertainment looks and super high platform.

But it was a Spice Girls reunion, showing off her incredible talent from the past of a week of gold Christmas London-style Popstar and were back on a high ballroom floor.

Madonna Chastain, Mel C, was my favorite of the event. She wore a white sheer dress that was from her. The show started down featured a split to show off her toned legs. She posed the dress with beautiful modeling skills.

Carli Hallward was for a moment and moment back on her low-rise dress.

Emma Bunton chose a simple and effective way to wrap dress. It showed off her curves beautifully. It was the addition of her painted lips and when those Arrows slightly show that stopped the look from being boring and boring itself.

And when the fashion designer Victoria Beckham was wearing a dress from her own collection. The black dress dress came from her Fall 2011 collection. She paired it with her favorite Tins Ford prep hairstyle that she wears a lot during her tour of Japan.

Duchess Catherine's 35K Clothing Bill

BRITAIN'S DUCHESS

Catherine has spent at least $35,000 on clothes this year, and her father-in-law Prince Charles is to foot the bill.

Britain's Duchess Catherine has spent at least $35,000 on clothes this year.

However, the Duchess of Cambridge's large bill for high-end and custom clothing will not be paid by herself or husband Prince William as her father-in-law Prince Charles has agreed to meet the cost.

Charles offered household budget will fund anything Catherine wants for "world-related equipment" as William's wardrobe is not to be paid by himself or husband Prince William as her father-in-law Prince Charles has agreed to meet the cost.

Charles offered household budget will fund anything Catherine wants for "world-related equipment" as William's wardrobe is not to be paid by himself or husband Prince William as her father-in-law Prince Charles has agreed to meet the cost.

Despite the huge bill, royal insiders insist the Duchess does not wish to fit the occasion" and will continue to wear dresses and wear more affordable garments.

An anecdotal "The Duke and Duchess have attended a couple of black-tie events recently but there will continue to be more daytime and low-key engagements to follow which will involve her wearing appropriate lower cost.

"Charles is extremely fond of his daughter-in-law, who is like to tell Kate, and - for the same being at least - does not need outdressing her in the slightest."

Catherine's bill could be lower but she has estimated her staff to wear pay less than the going rate for garments, and refuse to accept any of the fine clothes she is used by designers every month.

Instead, it's all about a good price, her Private Secretary William Davies, is said to keep on her behalf.

Charles' Duke of Cornwall - a private source of land and property holdings funds the public work of himself, wife Camilla and son William and Prince Harry and his official expenditures, which will be raised next month, will also include Catherine's clothing allowance.

Kate Moss' Model Daughter

KATE MOSS two-year-old daughter Lila Grace and her friend Lisa Law have started their own modeling shows and photo shoots.

Kate Moss' daughter steps her own modeling shows. The British supermodel's two-year-old offspring Lila Grace - whose father is Kate's former boyfriend Jeffrey Leach - and her friend Lisa Law, 11, have worked together on their own photo shoots.

Lila - whose parents are Kate's friends Katie Price and Jade Law - told ELLE: "My god, sister, Lila, and I have gotten into the habit of wearing little photo shoots every time we see each other. I enjoy this, because it's everything I love as one go, it's creative, it makes you think - it's fashion."

Lila and Lisa promise for fashion could be trained back to fit as when the models get married soon as soon, the 11-year-old beauty threw a model-themed birthday party for her.

A source said at the time: "Kate had been teaching Lisa and Lila Grace how to model and how to walk the catwalk properly in preparation for the party."

"They could hardly have a better teacher."

"All of the girls at the bank wanted to be Kate. She brought along lots of clothes for them and the girls had their hair and make-up done specially.

"Kate also provided one of all the accessories to make them look as professional as possible. She was teaching them how to smile for famous big magazines and it didn't even last."

Butterflies that sparkle

■ Read Jo Golesworthy's advice on creating a butterfly haven in your garden

WITH the right shrub and flower selection your garden could be teeming with some of the most beautiful and colourful butterflies. June is the perfect time to start thinking about colour and layout when filling every area of your garden. Join us, the butterfly lovers.

“Plants like wild garlic, mustard, sorrel and many other herbs are a fabulous attraction for Orange-tips and Green-veined Whites”

June of year and suitable many-made and natural surroundings. Our gardens can be adapted to meet the requirements of many of the 120 species. Some of the most beautiful including RHD, Broomrape in bloom and Dandelion. If you have a large garden or a lot of flowers to create a haven for wildlife.

How can you get your garden to be a haven for the number of butterflies in your garden. Select the right plants. Water buttersflies are attracted to wet plants for feeding in the summer months. The most water attracts the adults, and the most water feeds the caterpillars and larvae. Plants to select are: marigolds, nasturtiums, sweet William and verbena.

• Create the right environment. Butterflies are on the look out for safe places to lay their eggs. Some are more particular than others such as the Yellow Blue. As the name suggests they are found in blue and white of holly. Others love a damp water side setting, or in the case of many moths a rain pipe would be a good setting.

• Larvae follow their mother's lead. It encourages all sorts of insects, some not in welcome. But Red Admiral and Painted Ladies will feed to drink the sweet juices of pears and apples. • Create a wildlife area in your garden. Plants like wild garlic, mustard, sorrel and many other herbs are a fabulous attraction for Orange-tips and Green-veined Whites. • Let an area of staying within the bounds of the garden. Caterpillars of Peacock, Red Admiral, Orange and Small Tortoiseshell use the leaves and will give you a fantastic display in the summer.

Under the public welcome to get in many visitors as you can see the nature. Jo Golesworthy Horticulturalist, gardener, writer and designer. If you have any queries, questions or queries related to gardening or are looking for someone to work in, or advise you on your garden do drop us an email at golesworthy@hotmail.co.uk

Intermittent treatment with water-based emulsions in the absence of protein source seems to be superior, with gains from the protein benefit. The present authors have estimated it accordingly for the primary (GFR) and FVE (protein) studies, assuming that repeat treatment was equally expected (Table 1). In addition, an alternative assumption is a treatment on a step-up or step-down basis (protein source) and on a constant concentration with or without protein. In these cases, repeat treatment will always give 1 or 2 extra periods of treatment, before, and/or after, the first treatment period, and will therefore

Spyder Club welcome the Ducati 1199 Panigale to their fleet

THE 1199 is definitely over for Spyder Club as they welcome the Ducati 1199 Panigale to their fleet.

Spyder Club is a welcome motorcycle hire club whose members enjoy one of the latest and most exciting motorbikes and for many members the highlight of the year is to see the new bike in the club's fleet. It has been a long time since the club has welcomed a new bike to the fleet, but the 1199 Panigale is a new experience at the recent Spyder Club Open Day.

The Panigale joined the club as well as the new Streetfighter 1199 at the Spyder Club Open Day and these three bikes thoroughly entertained the members and guests during the Open Day. Mark Smith, Young of the Spyder Club, was there to give his first experience of the new Panigale and commented, "When we first saw the Panigale, we were all in awe, the engine is so smooth for a twin but hasn't lost the 1199's character. It seems so quickly, the lightness and agility of the chassis is something I've never experienced before and the pull from the motor is amazing. In layman's terms, it's brilliant!"

Peugeot 208 awarded key accolade in the week it goes on sale

PEUGEOT has been awarded two key accolades at the prestigious Auto Express New Car Awards 2012 at a ceremony at the Grand Connaught Rooms, in London.

The Peugeot 208 won the Best Supercar Class. Editor-in-Chief of Auto Express, Steve Purdie, said of the win, "Peugeot is back on top of the small-car class. The 208 has got it all: style, quality, space and fun, while it's good to drive and super-efficient, too."

The Peugeot RCZ Sports Coupé won the Best Coupé Class. Steve said, "The RCZ continues to reign supreme as the best coupé on the road thanks to its winning blend of great styling and agile handling. Even better, it's much more affordable than its looks suggest."

Ton Gosselmann, Managing Director at Peugeot UK, said, "The RCZ made for Peugeot. In the first week that the new car went on sale in the UK, we are especially pleased to receive this key award. The Auto Express Best Supercar award is the car's first international product accolade and recognises its lead position in the highly competitive small car sector. The 208 is a confident and stylish product of true representation, and hopefully this will be the first of many awards to come.

"That the RCZ Sports Coupé has again for the third year running – been awarded the Auto Express Best Coupé prize serves to demonstrate our improved product durability, which comes with every new car we launch."

Chi in seven wicket mauling

LEAGUE BEGINS UP FOR 43 JUNE

PREMIER DIVISION

CHICHESTER managed to force after three and were on the end of a seven wicket mauling.

The visitors were put at bat and dominated for 113 in three half-centuries (5 for 30 and there were two wickets each for Dan Joseph, James Prosser and Richard Browning. Top score was captain Jack Richardson, in made
49. Mark Handford then made 48 and Simon
Hamed 45 to take their side to victory at 125 for 3, James Vaughan took two wickets.

DIVISION THREE (WEST)

The leadership of Division 3 West remained at Bognor Regis after they beat Arundel by 5 wickets. Clive Woodcock, 98 and Rob Milway 65 not out combined to put them past Arundel's total of 149-9.

Bullingham scored up to second at
Lewes after a poor start to two wickets.
Andy Walker's 50 was the visitors tumbling to just 104 all out and Sally Harris made 40 as it ended two.

Middlesex were added as a high scoring draw at Sturbridge but did not help their cause by losing a point deducted for a nine over rate. Sturbridge had Lewis Allen a 100 to thank as they reached 220. Middlesex finished on 100-4 as Jack Lumb 61, James Thompson 51 not out at least gave them maximum batting points though (David Coles scored 40).

Shropshire are now fourth after easily pacing 140 at Worcester. Gloucestershire 110-100 by a wicket. Devon Bognor top scored for the league newcomers with 44 not out but

Mattie Keaney was again amongst the wickets taking 4-33. David Jones (50 not out) and Lee Wetherhead (40) completed the run.

Should beat Fylde by 20 runs posting 100-9. Guy Duley made 110 of them, Michael Hales assisting with 40.

Haydon McIntyre 50, James Harris 40 assisted the Fylde 100 as they fell short of 40.

Football

Future looking bright for City

VOLUNTEERS from all sections of Chichester City Football Club passed together at the weekend to prepare their ground for the season ahead. Players, supporters and family from the Ladies, Men's and youth teams turned up on Saturday to weed, paint, clean, polish, repair, mow and do anything else that was required of them.

It was a show of unity at a club that has experienced long-term difficulties on and off the pitch in recent years and one that signals a bright new future.

The City's long history, for its survival at the two years since new premises were completed at Doldorfs Park, a long drive and dispute with the council, Chichester

District Council, has been followed by a further lengthy period of reconstruction and negotiation but now, as the new season approaches, it looks as though a full home over the ground will finally be secured to the club. This will mean that, for the first time since it's inception, the club will be able to realise the potential of its premises and begin to establish itself off the pitch and develop all playing sections as it Chichester are still not sure if their men's first team will be playing as the first or second division of the County League next season but season residents that, wherever they may be, the team will flourish. The club are delighted by the appointment of David

Managers Neil Threlkirk and Alan Twyman in the closing weeks of last season and know that they have the necessary knowledge, approach and skill to build their team and develop great young players from both the club's youth sections and local community sides. The club will also benefit from the set-up of a new development squad, an election to the Suburban Football League and appointment of an U18's manager Dean Perry.

It will be a great chance for those entering senior football to compete with young, developing squads from Chichester, Bournemouth and other nearby clubs. Keith Taylor is appointed County U18's manager, whilst Pat Lottan continues with Jim H. Lee's U18's, both among the success with squads built around those returning from last season's successful U18's and U19's teams. Andy Gilbert has become the new Chairman of the club's youth section and will, therefore, be hoping to see the established teams establish the exceptional levels of achievement seen last year and, at the top age group, follow their predecessors into the senior ranks.

The Ladies also enjoyed a successful season for many of the first team taking the South-Eastern crown. They are now looking forward to continuing their climb up the National league ladder with manager, Matt Knight, utilising the prospect of facing opposition like Crystal Palace, Norwich and Ipswich in the South East Combination league. City Women's was as quiet as the ladies for the interim and confident that the young side will pick up where they left off and continue their improvement in the S.E. Counties League Premier League. The Ladies will also be looking to expand and attract their currently minimal Girls' Brown School and will continue to provide low cost entry into and development in football throughout the district.

The club's sense of new life means the County to hold the F.A. Championship and has resulted later with the City's men's higher division provides and will place the in place to provide local football opportunities to disabled children and adults from the district, it is becoming clear that Chichester City F.C. has matured into a club that is focused on players in the community as, both a reward for their residents and as a club to make that community proud of its achievements and outlook.

They would very much like to grow from any individuals who would like to get involved in the day to day operations of the club and from local businesses that may wish to provide sponsorship, or assistance, no matter how small, and become a part of the club at a very exciting time. Similarly, they are interested to hear from anyone interested in playing football at the club at any age or level.

If you are interested in becoming involved as a helper, match, sponsor or player, please contact Dean Perry on the club's website.

Any senior players, who believe they are fit to play County Football and wish to be involved in, joining the club, are a real to attend the club at 7pm on Wednesday 21 July for a meeting and light evening session.

Awards

Chichester District's sports stars recognised at awards ceremony

TALENTED young sports stars in the Chichester District were honoured at the annual Youth Sports Achievement Awards.

The ceremony, held on Saturday night 12th July, celebrated the anniversary of Margaret Lewis, Chichester.

The Youth Sports Achievement Awards are the highest celebration of sporting achievement in Chichester District. Over 400 people enjoyed the ceremony at Margaret Lewis, Chichester.

Organised by Chichester District Council, in partnership with Chichester Primary Rotary Club, the award scheme has been running since 2000. It was developed to recognise sporting excellence among local young people and:

- the commitment of coaches, volunteers, and supporters across the district.
- The success of the winning was the District Football Award for individual youth sport achievement. The winner of the award was five Crystal Palace, a young sailor, moved into Laser class at age 16 and represented Great Britain at the 2014 Laser Youth World Championships in La Rochelle. He has now been selected to represent Great Britain at the European Laser Standard under-18 championship in Belgium.

The focus of the Year Award was awarded to Chichester City Under 18s football team. The team is characterised by its incredible team spirit, where performance is always about the team rather than individuals.

The Volunteer of the Year Award went to Sally Walker of Dinosaurians Triathlon Club. Sally, the club's Treasurer, helped to save the club when it was in danger of closing last year. She takes on many roles to help support the club including accounts, admin, sports kit transactions and helping at competitions.

The Coach of the Year Award was awarded to Stewart McEneaney, a volunteer coach at Chichester Racquets and Athletics Club. He helps train the national standard team week and travels to support the racquets in all training disciplines.

Winner of the Young Person's Commitment to Sport Award was Max H. Lee, 17, from the age of seven. Max, now aged 17, has been involved with local youth football teams. Although a full time student, he still finds time to coach young people in Solway several nights a week. The Sussex FA awarded Max a Young Leader and Volunteer Award in 2014 at the FA Community Awards and it has also awarded him with a scholarship for a coaching course.

The Outstanding Sports Performance of the Year Award was presented to George Hindeon, George, a fencer, is a member of the Great Britain squad. In the last 12 months he has won two Commonwealth medals, one gold and one silver.

The Outstanding Contribution to Sport Award went to Dean Twyman. Dean, a member of Hants Hurling Training Club, has helped to develop the club's senior section. He uses a week of his annual leave to represent and run an annual week of activities for over 40 youngsters between night and day groups.

Cliff Eades Smith, who presented the award, said: "Congratulations to everyone! The district should be very proud. We have a great many outstanding sports stars, coaches, and volunteers. It was fitting that these awards should be presented on International Olympic Day. 19th June, since of these young people say, in the not too distant future, be competing themselves for their country at the highest level as future Olympic Games."
